In June this year, the UK is hosting the G7 summit in Cornwall. This is a conference where leaders from the seven largest economies – UK, Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Japan and the USA, this year also joined by South Korea, India, South Africa and Australia – will meet and discuss how they can play a strong role in tackling global challenges, such as the climate emergency. These countries are not only some of the world's wealthiest countries, but also the ones that produce the most pollution.

This is a meeting that could change the world. Leaders at the G7 summit could make commitments that would help us get on a path to a fairer world – or ones that hinder this effort! They have the power to hold businesses accountable and they can influence other leaders and governments to take action.

At this year's meeting, we need countries to signal their ambition to tackle the climate emergency as part of their coronavirus recovery plans. Please join with Tearfund in praying for this summit and for world leaders who have the power to set in motion significant action to tackle the climate crisis.
